Religious organisations – Keeping children safe

Commission for Children and Young People information sheet

Victoria's child safety laws

In Victoria, there are laws that give children and young people the right to be safe in the places they go and the activities they do. These laws include the Child Safe Standards and the Reportable Conduct Scheme. Many organisations must follow these child safety laws. This includes schools, sporting clubs, childcare centres and overnight camps for children, as well as religious organisations and faith groups.

What are my religious organisation's responsibilities?

Faith is an important part of life for many children and young people. Religious organisations and groups have an important job to make sure they keep children safe from abuse, by following the Child Safe Standards and the Reportable Conduct Scheme.

The Child Safe Standards mean organisations must take steps to stop child abuse and harm. Under the Reportable Conduct Scheme, the head of a religious organisation has important steps they must take to report and investigate allegations of child abuse or harm made about their religious leaders, employees or volunteers.

At the Commission for Children and Young People, we help organisations follow the rules and make sure they are keeping children safe from abuse. We have lots of information to help you on our website. This includes videos and resources in many languages.

We must all work together to keep children and young people safe. For most organisations, there is still more work to do to protect children from abuse.

How do you get started?

We recommend that you:

- visit our website to learn what is expected of your organisation. There are helpful resources linked below or explore them all on our website: https://ccyp.vic.gov.au/resources/
- > check what child safety policies and practices are already in place in your organisation
- make sure your organisation has a contact person for child safety issues, such as a child safety officer
- talk about the Child Safe Standards and the Reportable Conduct Scheme with your Management Committee
- make a list of what your organisation must do under the Child Safe Standards and the Reportable Conduct Scheme – your organisation may need to write new policies or other documents to help everyone follow the law and keep children safe.
